À PROPOS

Who am I?

I am Chloe Lelievre, I live in Nantes, western France and I am a freelance illustrator.

I enjoy illustrating the poetry of daily life, the unexpected and the richness of our inner worlds. As a self-taught illustrator, I have worked in other professions related to project management and communication, which has become an asset that helps me understand clients' needs and working methods to better adapt to them.

What is my universe?

My style and characters, at first glance rather naive, invite curiosity, escape, and imagination. I draw inspiration from my environment, nature, and what moves me. My sensitivity often focuses on topics such as ecology, feminism, and mental health. My clients regularly ask me to create non-realistic conceptual images where each person can bring their personal interpretation.

How do I work?

I like to mix illustration techniques, blending painting and digital media, playing with colors, and experimenting with textures.

I also adapt to the needs and desires of my clients in order to offer creations that best match the desired outcome.

And if we worked together?

I am constantly in search of new projects to illustrate, ready to take on new creative challenges, and would love to put my pencil at the service of your ideas. Please don't hesitate to contact me so we can discuss it further. See you soon!"
